

Summer Highlights 2008

A collection of quotes that kept us laughing through the difficult days of summer.

“Microsoft Equation Editor...sucks!” Kamlesh Parwani

“Everytime I lower my standards, a little piece of me dies.” K. Parwani

“It’s like pornography...I can’t define it, but I know it when I see it!” Peter Andrews

“If your handwriting is bad enough, you don’t need to be a good speller.” K. Parwani

“You cannot use the word obviously in a proof until you have a PhD.” K. Parwani

“If I die before I wake, the final I will not have to take!” Sandra Webb

“Never underestimate the power of luck!” P. Andrews

“Why did I erase that? Maybe I haven’t had enough coffee.” K. Parwani

“This is homework, by the way, and I will now write some stuff on the board which may or may not be helpful.” [Laughter] “No, I am serious!” K. Parwani

When asked about the difference between proved or proven, “It’s kind of like the difference between being hanged or being hung.” S. Webb

On the difficulty level of Real Analysis:

“Did anyone cry?” K. Parwani

“Not at school.” S. Webb

“Then the class was just right!” K. Parwani

“Since it’s French, you don’t have to pronounce 70% of the letters.” K. Parwani

“Do you think I could get in the neighborhood of a master’s degree?” S. Webb while talking to P. Andrews.
